

CLBRI Launch

To celebrate the launch of the Cambridge Lipidomic Biomarker Research Initiative, HNR held a 1-day symposium on July 15th.

The event was attended by scientists working in the fields of nutrition and metabolomics. Presentations were given by leading experts from the UK, USA and Canada.

The initiative is now officially on it's journey to becoming an internationally distinctive laboratory with the capacity to discover and use biomarker techniques in the study of lipids (fats) and their roles in health and disease.

For more information please see the following website:
<http://www.mrc.ac.uk/Newspublications/News/MRC006220>